

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, JANUARY 25, 1920.
Copyright, 1920, by the Sun Printing and Publishing Association

This Is the Latest in Aerial Acrobatics

Here is the first step in Al Wilson's airplane stunt now thrilling hundreds on the Pacific coast. The former army instructor is on the upper plane of the machine he is about to leave, with the second machine above and overtaking it.

Extraordinary aerial photograph of Wilson's plane jump taken from a third machine as all three flew over the coast near Los Angeles. The planes come within six feet of one another so Wilson may grab hold of the upper plane.

Al Wilson, the aviator who performs the latest and most daring of aerial acrobatic stunts without the use of a rope ladder or any other safety device.
Photos from Underwood & Underwood.

Now he is clinging safely to the pursuing machine and it is relatively a simple matter for him to swing to the lower plane and make his way to the cockpit.

Latest photograph of Sir Henry Forbes-Robertson, the noted English actor familiar to thousands of Americans. He is about to retire from the stage.
Photo Wide World.

A Greek artist, Theodore Tsavalas, at work on a panel in the Greek Orthodox Church of the Holy Trinity in East Seventy-second street, a labor he is doing without pay. He has refused a $200,000 commission in Greece in order to complete the task. At right—The artist in civilian garb.

